WHY EPIDEMICS SPREAD

Dr. W. T. McConville, Secretary Board of Health, Exhorts Parents to Obey Quarantine Law to Check Disease.

In order that we may intelligently apply preventive measures for the suppression of disease it is absolutely essential that we have the hearty co-operation of the public. Without their co-operation all health laws become a negligible quantity and might as well have never been written. When our legislators at Harrisburg caused to be passed upon our statute books certain laws for the guidance of our health officers they did not intend to cause any unnecessary hardships to individual families even though at times obedience to these laws may greatly inconvenience those that are unfortunate enough to have some contagious or infectious disease within their household. Health laws are made with the idea of the greatest good to the greatest number. That is why a certain period of quarantine is established for different diseases for during the time it is possible for the patient to transmit the disease to others it is not only dangerous but criminal for the patient to come in contact with others.

During the past eight weeks an epidemic of measles has been prevalent in Honesdale and vicinity, schools have been closed, houses quarantined and many people put to a great deal of inconvenience by the carelessness of their neighbors due to the fact that they utterly disregarded the quarantine law and helped spread a contagious disease instead of assisting the health authorities to combat it.

A chain is no stronger than its weakest link and though the state laws may be forged ever so strong if the connecting link between the health inspector and the patient is only a flimsy pretext of compliance with the existing quarantine law, it is at once reduced to an absurdity and soon becomes a farce. There are some honest people who do not believe in quarantine, yet this does not excuse them from obedience to the law. There are others that think fumigation does no good. However, the law says it must be done wherever contagious disease has been present. Some others believe they can fumigate themselves. But the law expressly says it must be done by the Board of Health. Then there are certain others that refuse to pay for fumigation in the borough. Why they should do so has not been ascertained as yet but they should know the health officer pays himself, in the Board of Health, for the formaldehyde and as his time is worth something it is supposed he will be reimbursed by the tenant of the property where a contagious disease exists.

If every household where measles or any other contagious disease exists will live up to the law as laid down by the State Board of Health which the Health Inspector informs him of, we will soon be rid of measles and have within this beautiful borough of Honesdale a health resort instead of a breeding place for disease.

Most contagious diseases are preventable today and if the public once become familiar with that scientific fact and know the important part each individual plays in the health of his community we could get along with less doctoring and spend more time increasing the wealth and happiness of our common country.

DR. W. T. McCONVILLE, Secretary Board of Health.

Married Fifty Years.

On July 4, 1862, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Ryan were married in St. John's R. C. church. Just fifty years ago last Thursday, Rev. J. J. Doherty, then rector of the church, performed the ceremony. Last Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Ryan received Holy Communion as a thanksgiving to God for His goodness to them during their half century of married life. On Thursday, a number of friends assembled at the Ryan home in honor of the wedding anniversary. The families of their two daughters, Margaret, wife of John Dunn, and Kate, wife of Thomas Canivan, of Honesdale, were present together with their husbands. Among the other guests were: Edward E. Ryan and five children, of Carbondale; Michael J. Howley and daughter, Miss Mary, of Port Jervis. There were eighteen grandchildren present. A delightful day was spent by the assemblage in hearing reminiscences from the couple on the events occurring during the half century just closing.

—Now is the time to subscribe to The Citizen. It's getting better.

POSTOFFICE REPORT.

Honesdale Did as Much Business the Last Fiscal Year as Cities Many Times Its Size.

The Citizen herewith presents a most gratifying statement of the amount of business done at the Honesdale postoffice during the fiscal year just closed.

The figures speak for themselves and places Honesdale in a rating with towns many times the size of our beautiful Maple City. One thing that is evident of prosperity is the demand to get into larger quarters, the present location being inadequate to handle the rapidly increase of business. Postmaster Allen hopes to occupy the city hall building the middle of August.

Deputy Postmaster C. J. Kelley has furnished us with the following report which will be read with much interest by citizens of Honesdale and vicinity:

The postal receipts for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1912, and they amounted to $18,680.03. This is an increase of $646.16 over the fiscal year ending June 30, 1911.

The number of registered letters and parcels for the year, 2969. The money order business is also indicative of the progress of the Honesdale postoffice. It shows that during the fiscal year just ended, the number of money orders issued was 6,426.

There has also been an increase in the number of special letters and packages delivered from this office during the past year.

The postal savings system was established at this place on the 15th of September, 1911, and has therefore been less than a year in operation, but it is growing steadily in public favor and in the number of depositors.

Altogether the Honesdale postoffice shows a substantial increase in business for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1912, as compared with the previous year, and it has been a busy and prosperous year. There are three regular carriers, and four rural letter carriers. There are five star routes from this office. The number of clerks in the office is four.

They went to the cellar of the church a few moments before the crash came. All the fire companies of the town turned out and soon subdued the flames, which had started.

The home of Thomas Mullen, located on Elm street, was also struck. The roof was partially torn off. Damages done are said to be $500.

THIRTEENTH TO CAMP

Officers of Regiment Met on Thursday Night to Make the Final Preparations For Trip to Gettysburg.

The Thirteenth regiment boys are busying themselves these days getting everything in shape for the coming encampment at Gettysburg. They are looking forward to one of the most successful outings held in the history of the National Guard. The men will be under tent from July 22 to the 30th. The camp is to be named after former Governor Edwin S. Stuart.

The present intention is for the regiment entraining at the Lackawanna station some time during the day of the 22nd. This is to be done so that the regiment may reach the famous battlefield before 10:30 that night, the time scheduled for it to report in camp. The trip will be made via Northumberland and Harrisburg and thence to Gettysburg via the Western Maryland route.

The Scranton companies, A, B, C, D, F, H, K and L are to assemble at the armory, in Scranton, and so are the members of Company A, Battalion of Engineers, Captain A. B. Dunning commanding. Company E will go over from here on the D. & H., joining their comrades there. The members of Company L, at Easton, will go to camp with the Fourth regiment.

To Have Wagon Train.

The Thirteenth goes to camp this summer, equipped with a wagon train, fourteen vehicles in all, purchased through popular subscriptions received from members of the guard and former guardsmen.

The wagons are of the regulation army size. They are to be drawn by mule teams. In camp the outfits will be used for general cartage purposes and they will also be pressed into service during the manoeuvres, being used to carry the supplies.

GAME PLENTIFUL IN THE STATE

Blight and Game Results Will be Serious if Chestnut Trees Are Destroyed, Says Secretary Kalbfus—Other Harrisburg Notes.

In the opinion of Dr. Joseph Kalbfus, Secretary to the Board of Game Commissioners of Pennsylvania, based upon personal observation and reports he has received, game birds wintered well in this State in spite of the severe weather, and, together with a favorable hatching spring, the outlook for shooting next fall is most excellent. Dr. Kalbfus attributed this condition of affairs to feeding by the keepers of the game preserves and the systematic destruction of wildcat, fox, weasel, skunk and other animals that prey upon feathered life.

Dr. Kalbfus believes that the good work in this direction should be carried further by the passage of a bounty act, and he devotes considerable space in the report he made recently to the Game Commission to advocacy of it. Reference is also made in the report to the spread of the chestnut blight. It means if it is not checked, says Dr. Kalbfus, a decided reduction on the food supply for wild life, and when the supply falls below the demand there is sure to be serious results.

A fall is taken out of "an organization that has been formed in Harrisburg for, as their printed declaration states, the protection of sportsmen." The doctor is of the opinion that the policies advocated by these Harrisburg hunters are at variance with the best interests of the State.

Governor Tener of Pennsylvania and his staff of commissioners arrived at San Francisco Wednesday to select a site for the Pennsylvania building at the Panama-Pacific international exposition. They were met by members of the Pennsylvania Society of California, exposition officers and the California Grays as a guard of honor. The United States steamship Slocum brought them across the bay from Oakland.

General orders, No. 23, giving instructions for the approaching division encampment of the State Guard, have been issued at the office of the Adjutant General and among other things they call attention to the fact that men enlisted within thirty days prior to the encampment will not be taken to camp unless the soldier has served a previous full enlistment.

WANTED TO DIE; TOOK CHLOROFORM.

On Friday evening a young man of this place attempted to end his life by drinking chloroform in a Main street restaurant, but the attempt failed and he was rescued in time by the administrations of a local physician. The whole cause of the rash act seems to be the fact that the young lady of his choice would not marry him. She told him so and in a despondent mood and despairing of his continued life without the ideal of his dreams to share it with him, he went to a local drug store and purchased a quantity of the deadly fluid. Going to the hotel he told a person there that they could pick him up in about an hour, but they did not think anything of it. Later he was noticed in a corner of the room apparently asleep in a chair. Someone noticed that he did not look right and shook him. Failing to get a response from the young man a closer observation disclosed the fact that he was in a stupor. The physician was called and in a short time the young man was brought around to consciousness. The young man is well known and was able to go to work on Saturday morning.
